Eventually you will run out of thread. After you finish a flower continue around the top part of the flower and back through the center bead of the leaf section. Catch a thread below and tie a half knot around it. Continue through a couple more beads then trim the thread off. Add a new thread to your needle.

Pass through a couple beads on the top side of the flower. Catch a thread below and tie a half knot. Pass through remaining petal then through the center leaf bead again. Go through the lower part of the end flower exiting where you left off. Trim off the tail of your new thread.
